THE FULLER SYMPOSIUM ON THE INTEGRATION OF FAITH AND PSYCHOLOGY

Living with Grief

1/13, 1/14, 1/15
10 A.M. TRAVIS AUDITORIUM

Established to encourage the discoveries of new connections between Christian faith and the disciplines of psychology, this year's Symposium consists of three lectures presented by Dr. Nicholas Wolterstorff of Yale University. In this series, Wolterstorff confronts the characteristic American practice of disowning grief, getting over it, and getting on with life. He affirms that grief is a way of honoring the person grieved for. If the person is worth loving, then they are equally worthy of grief.

Wolterstorff is considered one of the foremost, and most accessible, contemporary philosophers. Wolterstorff is the author of varied and noted works, among them: On Universals, Work and the Worlds of Art, Faith and Rationality, and Lament for A Son. The latter work was written after his son Eric's death in 1983 in a freak mountain climbing accident.

CHRISTIAN COMMUNITY COLUMN

REGARDING SMALL GROUPS

by John Etchberger, SOT Student

My wife, Kristi, and I have what is, perhaps, a different perspective regarding small groups. As mid-life career change individuals, we do not fit the profile of typical Fuller students. We live in a house, rather than on campus. And being parents of a 17-month-old toddler, we have limited opportunities to participate in campus life. In fact, attending class is about the only activity we normally do with other students. And, as a result, after more than a year, we still did not feel an integral part of the Fuller community.

However, this past quarter, we took the opportunity to join a couples small group which was forming. Through it, we have had the opportunity to become friends with two other couples, who felt very much like we did. We now get together each week to share at least a portion of our lives in true Christian community. We look forward to our time together and it has made us feel more connected with the Fuller community at large. So to any student who is not yet a member of one of the many small groups at Fuller, we would heartily recommend joining a group this quarter.

TYRANNY OF TIME

Is busyness a sin? Or is busyness a virtue? Does being busy mean that you're doing "the Lord's work"? Do you feel valuable because you are busy? Come explore these issues with Rob and Julie Banks on Friday, January 15, 9 am - 4 pm at Manresa Retreat Center in Azusa. Cost is $5 for lunch. The workshop will be experiential and practical. Call 584-5322 to register.

THE COUPLES GARDEN

Because marriage is like a garden, couples need to build into their lifestyle the wise and regular nourishing of their marital garden. OCC is pleased to offer The Couple's Garden on Fuller campus at a discounted rate in cooperation with Brainerd Psychological Association. These date nights include "His and Hers" preparation sheets, and a one hour marriage enrichment lecture in a congenial atmosphere with appetizers. The evening concludes with discussion questions for each couple to take to dinner alone at their favorite restaurant. Saturday nights at 6 pm on January 16, March 6, May 15 in Payton 101. Special student trial rate is $2 for the first session! To register, call 584-5322.

DISCOVERING YOUR GIFTEDNESS

Do you ever question what your spiritual gifts might be, or if you even have any at all? If these questions sound familiar, join Norvene Vest and the Office of Christian Community on Friday, January 29 from 1:00 - 5:00 pm in Payton 101 for an experiential seminar, "Discovering Your Giftedness." Reservations requested. Call 584-5322 and leave your name and Box #. (If possible, come with a friend who knows you well and can affirm your discoveries!)

COUPLES SMALL GROUPS

Come get to know other Fuller couples for Bible study, prayer and sharing. An initial meeting to form new groups will be Monday, January 11 at 5:30-6:30 pm in the Catalyst. Call 584-5322 if you're interested but can't make the meeting.

SMALL GROUPS NOW FORMING

If you are a new or returning student looking for a group of fellow students to meet with in a weekly small group, come to the orientation meeting and let us help you get started. January 11, 1993 from 5:30 - 6:30pm at the Office of Christian Community (2nd floor above Catalyst).

Financial Aid Office Gives More for the Money

A trip up to the 2nd floor of Stephan Hall (above the SOT Academic Advising Office) will prove to any seasoned Fullerite that this tucked-away corner of the campus is producing more than just dollars and cents. The Office of Financial Aid, under the leadership of six year Fuller staff veteran Hugo Bouse and crew of six has been working hard to better equip Fuller students with the money they need when they need it.

The physical changes are representative of their labors. Having expanded to include two more rooms, the department now includes a room for financial counseling, more space for filing, and a wide-open area complete with tables and chairs designed to accomodate students who need to write out applications on the spot.

But behind the scenes, the staff are making the process of actually obtaining a loan much easier. Plans are now underway to install an automated Electronic Transfer System which will link Fuller's OFA to a nation-wide network of agencies that grant loans. Students who apply for loans directly through this office will soon receive responses far more quickly and easily than in the past. Federal loans will especially become much more accessible. "We want to keep the process simple," says Bouse, who feels that the average student should not have to get bogged down in the technicalities of applying for loans.

To keep students out of as much debt as possible, the Office is also stepping up their efforts to find creative ways of funding a Fuller education. The staff is currently looking into additional funding for Doctoral students and students in the Marriage & Family Therapy program. Bouse is continually advocating for increased grant levels school-wide.

As always, the publicity of new information regarding grants and loans is one of the OFA's top priorities. In their regular column in the SEMI (see page 3), they alert students to outside scholarship opportunities, changes in loan procedures, new regulations, and other pertinent news. Says Bouse: "We want students to be aware of what's available." If a student's proposal makes sense, he explains, they are usually willing to go ahead with it. However, they do take debt seriously!

If you have any questions or comments concerning the new services at the Office of Financial Aid, visit their office anytime during normal business hours.
